

Natural law theory—which offers rational defenses of basic moral principles common to many great Christian, Jewish, Muslim, and pagan thinkers—has recently witnessed a revival among English-speaking moral and legal philosophers. This seminar will begin by engaging with the analytic foundations and methods of natural law moral reasoning, but the better part of it will be spent considering its application to a variety of moral and political issues, including religious liberty, economic justice, just war and capital punishment, abortion, euthanasia, and marriage and sexuality.

August 2–6, 2017
at Princeton University

The 2017 Natural Law and Public Affairs Seminar

For advanced undergraduates and early graduate students

FACULTY

Dr. Robert P. George (Princeton)

Dr. Christopher O. Tollefsen (South Carolina)

Dr. Ryan T. Anderson (Heritage Foundation)

Sherif Girgis (Philosophy PhD Candidate, Princeton; co-author, What Is Marriage?)

To apply: www.winst.org/NLPASeminar

APPLICATIONS DUE MARCH 19, 2017

Sponsored by The Witherspoon Institute
www.winst.org